

Arbour Hill sycamore

A possible remnant of the old 'Playground' in Arbour Hill, Dublin, indicated on old maps circa. 1900.

It would have been witness to the burial of the leaders of the 1916 Rising and the creation of the State.

Magnificent and very large open grown tree in the heart of old Dublin.

(A Fatsia japonica or Castor Oil plant has been in residence for many years)

